CHAPTER XXVII.

LONDONDERRY.

The following residents of Londonderry township were seventy-six years of age or upwards in 1876: Samuel Wilkin, Edward Carpenter, William Francy, Henry Crusoe, Jackson Gracy, R. F. Campbell, Robert Campbell, Samuel Bratton, Andrew Hyde, Robert Madden, John Logan, Mrs. A. Logan, Mrs. C. Carpenter, Mrs. S. Madden, Mrs. S. McElroy, Mrs. S. Smith, Mrs. E. Rankins, Mrs. J. Walker, M. Walker, Robert Blackwood, T. G. Brown, William Hartgrave, Mrs. J. Francy, Mrs. E. Mack., Mrs. Sarah Hunt, Mrs. S. Rosegrants, Mrs. E. Davis, Mrs. S. Wilkin, Mrs. Decker, Mrs. Romans, Mrs. H. Briggs, Mrs. J. Kirk, Mrs. Ingle, Mrs. S. B. Smith, Simon Rosegrants, Jacob Baker, William Wilson, William Morrow, James Thwaite, Samuel B. Smith, Henry Briggs, Joel Kirk.

The father of John Downer was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1790, and came to Guernsey county in 1813. He entered the farm he now owns and with much labor cleared it of the dense woods that encumbered it. The hills and valleys, rich with their store of waving wheat or rustling corn, the large number of substantial, and often luxuriant homes, and the general air of thrift to be seen in almost every portion of the county, have nothing to remind the chance visitant of the dangers and hardships which the first settlers here, the brave pioneers, were called upon to endure. This sturdy man found a suitable helpmeet for frontier life in Elizabeth Work, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1805. He had twelve children. John was born in 1818, and has spent his whole life here. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph Barrett, in 1856. Their children are: Frank B., Clyde H., and Ida M. He owns two hundred and sixty-one acres, and has been a township official.

John Turkle was born in county Armaugh, Ireland, in 1790. While there he married Mary Farmer. Miss Farmer was born in 1799 and married in 1817. She was a native of county Armaugh also. Their ten children were named: George, John, James, Mary, Francis, Catharine, Joseph, Charles, Nancy, and Margaret. They first settled in Belmont county, and five years later moved to Oxford township, where they died. Joseph was born July 13, 1830, in Oxford township. With the exception of six years spent in California he has lived here ever since. March 25, 1865, he married Elizabeth Mercer, daughter of James Mercer, who was born May 12, 1840, in Belmont county. Their five children were named: Minnie J., born September 14, 1866; Viola S., November 9, 1869; Arenia C., May 1, 1872; Lottie C., March 17, 1874; and Alma E., June 16, 1878. Mr. Turkle owns one hundred and sixty acres, and has always been a farmer.

William Morrison was born in Pennsylvania in 1787, and while there he married Jane Wilkins, daughter of Archibald Wilkins. She was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1795. Their twelve children were named: Robert, Polly, Mary, Nancy, Jane, William, Margaret, Joseph, Elizabeth, Martha, Rebecca, and a dead infant. On coming to Ohio they settled in Belmont county where the husband and father died. His widow died after the removal of the family to this township. William Morrison, Jr., was born in Belmont county, January 16, 1820. In 1839 he made his permanent home here, with the exception of about four years spent elsewhere. In 1838 he married Margaret Hyde, daughter of Andrew Hyde. She was born February 27, 1820, in Washington county, Pennsylvania. Six of their eight children are living, viz: Andrew, born in 1839; Rebecca A., 1844; Isaac, 1846; Joseph, 1849; Mary C., 1851, and Margaret, 1855. Mary Jane and William are dead. Mr. Morrison owns three hundred and fourteen acres of land, and is a self made man.

Thomas Neilson was born in Ohio county, West Virginia, nine miles above Wheeling, in April, 1797. While there he married Mary, daughter of William Henderson. She was born April 12, 1801, two miles from his birthplace. Their children were: Margaret, born February 17, 1822; Mary Ann, born June 21, 1825, deceased; Sarah, born November 12, 1827; William, born July 13, 1830, deceased; Lavina, born April 11, 1833; Cornelia Ann, born September 6, 1835; John, born June 26, 1837, deceased; Thomas, born October 17, 1840, and Robert, born March 16, 1844. In 1828 this family made their permanent home here. He died December 2, 1873, and his wife died August 9, 1862. Thomas Neilson, Jr., was

Mrs. Shalosky Taken At 94

Native Of Prussia Was 94 Years Old

Mrs. Marcia Ann Shalosky, who as a child knew Frederick William IV, ruler of East Prussia, died at the age of 94 years Sunday morning at five o'clock at the home of her son, August Shalosky, five miles southeast of Newcomerstown.

Mrs. Shalosky had been ill two days and her death was ascribed to infirmities of age.

She was born Dec. 26, 1847 in Bromberg, East Prussia, Germany. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. John Schrovish. They came to America in the 1870's.

A feature story written by Miss Lois Zimmer of Canton several years ago described Mrs. Shalosky's early life in Prussia and her trip to the United States.

She was four years old when she met Frederick William of East Prussia and got to sit on the ruler's lap. It came about during a visit to her mother who was a cook for prisoners working on what was called a state canal project, near the Vistula river.

She recalled many early Prussian scenes, particularly her wedding. It was the custom for the bride-to-be to march at the head of a long procession including a band. After the ceremony the husband, assuming his place as the head of the house, led the wedding procession from the church.

Sometime after her marriage, oil was discovered on the family land. It was sold and with the money the family decided to come to America.

Mrs. Shalosky happened to know a Mrs. Bismark, whose husband at that time was working on the C. & M. tunnel south of Newcomerstown. Mrs. Bismark, visiting then in East Prussia, was to meet her husband in New York City and then come to Newcomerstown.

It was agreed that the Shalosky's should travel with Mrs. Bismark to the United States. There were 17 in the migration party, including Mrs. Shalosky's husband and two children, her parents, and brothers and sisters.

But when they arrived in New York, Mrs. Bismark's husband was not there to meet them.

The Shalosky's shared their money with Mrs. Bismark and after entering the United States they came to Newcomerstown on the railroad. It took all but $10 of their money.

The conductor, however, made a mistake and let them off at Newark. Then there was nothing to do but return to Newcomerstown by train.

When they got off at the local depot they had only one dollar among them. This they used to buy crackers, and they sat around the depot eating them, wondering what they were to do next.

Mrs. Shalosky was walking on the platform when she heard someone behind her addressing her in German. She turned around. It was the late Charles Ley of this village. He learned of their plight and helped them out, buying them milk and other food.

It was thus that they came to Newcomerstown.

When she died Mrs. Shalosky had a total of 96 living descendants. Her husband, John, died in 1913. She was the mother of ten children, seven of whom are living. They are Joseph of Dennison, Frank, address unknown, John of Port Washington, William and Henry of Columbus, August of near Newcomerstown and Mrs. Jacob Kujava of Little Swamico, Wisconsin.

Also surviving are 38 grandchildren, 49 great grandchildren, and two great great grandchildren.

Mrs. Shalosky was a member of the St. Francis de Sales church. Funeral services will be conducted there Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in charge of Rev. Fr. Hugh J. Spires. Burial will be in the Dennison cemetery.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of the Jones-Lydick funeral home.

Life in America

Immigrants' story is remembered

(Editor's Note — The following story was submitted by Lois Zimmer Craig of Newcomerstown, who originally wrote this story over 50 years ago. Mrs. Craig said, "My interest, and my dormant pride in being an American, was re-awakened recently when a letter arrived from Barbra J. Hathcock of Westerville saying she is researching her Shalosky family. Through our county branch of the Ohio Genealogy Society she had secured a copy of the story I had written many years ago about the origin of that family. As a result, I hunted out the original manuscript of the article, which had been simultaneously published by the Columbus Dispatch and the Canton Repository on Dec. 31, 1939. Since the Shaloskys, now scattered over many parts of Ohio and beyond, are gathering for their annual family reunion on Aug. 12 at Cy Young Park in Newcomerstown, I offered the story to the News, hoping that descendants of that hardy pair of immigrants and their neighbors will find it as inspiring to them as it has been to me.")

BY LOIS ZIMMER

A New Year...A New World! So strange a coincidence must have forecast a happy future that winter dawn 66 years ago tomorrow when a boat filled with immigrants entered New York harbor. And yet Marcia Anne Shalosky treasures it in her memory not half so fondly as she does another incident which occurred almost a quarter of a century earlier — an incident which could have its counterpart only in the pages of a fairy tale.

Last Tuesday Grandmother Shalosky passed her 92nd birthday. Perhaps it's this near approach to the round of a century which makes it easy for her to look again on these days when she was a little child. Perhaps that's why she can go back so quickly now to her parents' stone cottage on the banks of the Vistula River in Poland.

Today Mrs. Shalosky lives in a modest little house perched on the bank above the muddy road that winds through Glasgow. Glasgow — the skeleton remains of capitalists' dreams — a spot in southern Tuscarawas County's hills that once threatened rivalry to Pittsburgh! Now it isn't even marked on highway maps. But old residents will tell you that the graveled road which meanders off to the left from Route 16 halfway between Newcomerstown and Port Washington leads there.

Nothing very exciting ever happens at Glasgow anymore; there isn't even a general store where neighbors might meet to gossip or to indulge in possible arguments. It's a place utterly quiet, and old, and peaceful; its handful of inhabitants are scarcely aware of the rumble of trucks on the paved highway a half-mile to the west, or the shriek of whistles on the Pennsylvania over in the valley beyond the hills to the south. One could hardly find a spot which would provide a greater contrast with the war-torn Poland of today which was once Marcia Anne Shalosky's homeland. But happily, her recollections of Poland are all pleasant ones.

Perhaps that's why, so often, after a day spent in remembering, she wakes suddenly at night with the songs of the larks and cuckoos in the pine woods still ringing in her ears. And then she grieves for a little while that all of it happened so long, long ago.

And knowing this, one can almost believe that this tiny old lady with the quick, bird-bright eyes is one of Hans Christian Anderson's own creatures — the heroine of a fairy story with the heart of a poet. For surely one who has known 92 years of joy and hope and tragedy and despair and can yet dream of singing larks must have been endowed with a special gift!

Marcia Anne was only four-years-old when the fairy tale happened. A ship canal was being dug near Bromberg, and since here parents' stone cottage was close by the work, her mother was engaged to cook for the men. The men who did the work were Prussian military prisoners, and each of them had a small iron pot in which was placed his food supply for the day. These pots were brought each morning to the Shubrows' cottage and set on the hearth where Marcia Anne's mother kept the fire roaring. Then all the little pots were set to boiling, ready for the hungry men.

One day a strange man came loafing along the ship canal. He asked all sorts of questions, and soon got into an argument with the boss, who was very mean and gruff. It ended with the strange man being arrested and put to work along with the other prisoners. But even this had not seemed to frighten the men, for after he had wheeled a couple of loads of dirt he had come right back to the boss, and had asked, "How much pay am I going to get."

Of course this had made the boss very angry, so he swore at the man and said, "Just wait until you get a pay and find out!"

And then ...

But in the meantime the stranger had visited the Shubrows' stone cottage too, and had sat in the kitchen watching Marcia Anne's mother while she tended the fire and stirred the food in the little iron pots. And as he talked to the busy women, he had lifted the little girl, and had held her on his knee just like her own father did so often. And this is the fairy story which Marcia Anne has always treasured, for the stranger was King Frederick William IV of Prussia. But no one knew it until he got into the argument with the boss about his pay, and finally pulled back his coat to show his uniform.

History is far less kind to this Prussian king than is the little girl who sat on his knee, for one account ends with this statement: "Just before Bismarck took office in Prussia, the crazy King Frederick William IV died (1861) and was succeeded by his brother William." One finds however, that Frederick William IV was king of Prussia at a time when most of Europe was kept in a state of unrest by revolutionary groups, and if the travels incognito which the Prussian king made among his subjects did seem crazy to those who were concerned only with the political aspects of his reign, they no doubt did much to endear him to the common people, whom he apparently was sincerely anxious to befriend.

And how did Marcia Anne come to Newcomerstown, and thence to Glasgow?

That too, is an interesting story, possibly more unhappy than that of many immigrants, and yet characteristic of the threads of circumstance which must have guided the ancestors of so many of us in this New World melting-pot. Now 92-year-old Grandmother Shalosky is the only remaining member of the little family group which disembarked in New York that New of the husband who was to meet her in New York, and of the money he would bring.

But when the boat finally landed, it was not a "Happy New Year" for Mrs. Bismarck, for her husband was not there, nor had he sent her any money; and consequently she and her children would have been placed in detention, had not the Shalosky family come to their assistance. This is the story as Grandmother Shalosky tells it.

"We had all our money in silver, and I carried it in my pocket. When we got to New York, we could only get $80 for $100 in German money. It cost us some money to come into the country, $5 for the men, $3 for the women, and $2 for the children — $2 for my Andy, and $2 for my little Mary, just six months old. The Bismarck woman when she got to New York, asked for the money her husband was to send her, and they told her there wasn't any, and because she hadn't any at all, they were going to send her away. We shared our's though, and six days after we landed in New York, came on to New-

And how did Marcia Anne come to Newcomerstown, and thence to Glasgow?

That too, is an interesting story, possibly more unhappy than that of many immigrants, and yet characteristic of the threads of circumstance which must have guided the ancestors of so many of us in this New World melting-pot. Now 92-year-old Grandmother Shalosky is the only remaining member of the little family group which disembarked in New York that New Year's day 66 years ago but from that nucleus is already growing the fifth generation of typical Americans.

When Marcia Anne Shubrows grew to womanhood she was married to John Shalosky, who lived in the same neighborhood, there in East Prussia. The wedding was a very happy occasion, and typical of the kind then usual in that section of the Old Country. First, a man went from house to house carrying a tall cane with white ribbon tied to it. His was the duty of inviting the wedding guests.

On the day of the wedding, there was a procession to the church — first the bride, then the band and the guests, and last of all, the groom. But when the ceremony ended with the Priest's admonition, "The wedding is over; now you can spin," the procession was reversed. Now the husband was head of the house, and the bride appropriately, walked in the rear!

Marcia Anne was married in a brown dress. She laughed a little sadly when I asked her about this, and then quoted the old nursery rhyme: "Married in white, always live right, Married in black, wish yourself back, Married in green, live like a queen, Married in brown, have your ups and downs" ... "And I've had mine," she added.

Not many years after the Shalosky's were married, oil was discovered in the section of East Prussia where they and the Shubrows lived, so having sold their land they decided to come to America, bringing nothing but their clothing, the money which they had been paid for their land, and a package of amber, the pieces of which they had found on their own farm. The amber however, was either lost or stolen from them during the confusion of their arrival in New York.

The party, beside the Shalosky's and their two children Andy, aged two, and Mary, six months, included Mrs. Shalosky's father and mother, brother and two sisters. Another brother was already living in New York, and their plans, while indefinite, indicated that the rest of the family would probably decide to settle there, too.

But in the meantime they had made friends while waiting in Germany for the boat. They had become acquainted with a woman whose husband was working on the tunnel which the Cleveland and Marietta Railroad was building south of Newcomerstown, in Ohio. She and her children were going there to live. The woman was very friendly with the Shalosky's while they waited for the boat, but once they were aboard it, she began living "high," boasting some money to come into the country, $5 for the men, $3 for the women, and $2 for the children — $2 for my Andy, and $2 for my little Mary, just six months old. The Bismark woman when she got to New York, asked for the money her husband was to send her, and they told her there wasn't any, and because she hadn't any at all, they were going to send her away. We shared our's though, and six days after we landed in New York, came on to Newcomerstown."

But that trip from New York to Newcomerstown was not so easy as it sounds, for by the time the 13 tickets had been bought, they had only $10 left. And then the conductor on the immigrant train made a mistake and carried them on to Newark, Ohio, instead, and all but the very last dollar went for the fare to bring them back.

Finally they climbed off the train at Newcomerstown on Sunday morning, thirteen hungry, frightened people, with just $1 among them all. That last dollar was used to buy crackers. They ate them all, sitting there in the railroad station. Somehow the scene of those thirteen bewildered people sitting in a dingy little depot eating the crackers which their last dollar had been used to purchase becomes painfully real when one hears it in Mrs. Shalosky's own words:

"We sat around the station and ate them, and after that we still didn't know what to do. I was so homesick, and so worried that all of our money was gone, that I finally took Andy by the hand and Mary in my arms, and started walking up the railroad track. I felt so bad that I didn't watch to see where I was going, and hoped a train would come along and run over us. I was crying and talking to myself in German.

"Pretty soon I heard someone walking fast behind me. It was a man, and he said in German, 'What ails you, woman?' That man was Charley Ley, who worked around the railroad station. He took all 13 of us into his own home and helped us until we got located.

And so began the Shalosky's life in America. The furnaces which were to turn Glasgow into a second Pittsburgh were being built just then, and the men in the family had no trouble finding work. Ensuing years brought them perhaps the average in happiness and prosperity. But tragedy and grief have taken their toll too, for Mrs. Shalosky has seen death take not only her husband, but three of her nine children.

Today Grandmother Shalosky's descendants number almost the same as her years, for she has 41 grandchildren, as many great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild. Branches of her family have taken root in many different cities and several distant states; perhaps many of their younger generations scarcely know this tiny great-grandmother whose experience has been so broad, whose wisdom is so deep and whose faith in God is so sustaining.

To her family as to her neighbors she epitomizes the very best of a fast-disappearing Old World generation in the New.
