WESTLEY HINDS.

Mr. Westley Hinds, one of the pioneer citizens of this locality, died at his rural home about 3 miles northwest of Newcomerstown last Saturday morning, Oct. 10, at the age of 83 years and 20 days, of general debility. He was born Sept. 20, 1825, and was married to Mary A. Huff, Oct. 29, 1849. Their union was blessed with nine children, six of whom are living—Mrs. Belle Phillips of Illinois, Ezra Hinds of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Ara Walters of Canton, Elisha Hinds and Mrs. D. C. Whiting, jr. of this city and Flora Hinds of the homestead. The aged wife and mother also survives. Mr. Hinds united with the U. B. church about 45 years ago, lived a consistent christian, was a good husband, kind father and obliging neighbor. The funeral services were held from his late residence Monday afternoon conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. S. Jones, and interment was made in the Newcomerstown cemetery.

three of them—Blake Hinds, Lester Bucher and Clarence Owen jumped out.

We now tell what happened, as related by Lloyd Black who stayed in boat No. 2, rescued five persons and watched everybody carefully and coolly. Not quoting his words exactly, he said: Our boat was about 20 ft. from the one that capsized. It shocked us all because it happened so suddenly. Clarence Owen leaped out of our boat to rescue his mother. Blake Hinds and Lester Bucher jumped out probably from fright or to lighten the boat. Walter Hinds and I remained in the boat. In a few seconds our boat was below the wire, having floated over it. I then rowed directly to young Owen who had reached his mother and was trying to keep her head above water. He said to her, "Don't take hold of me and I will save you." Owen then caught her about the waist and kept her above water until the boat came near, when he caught hold of it and told her to do the same. She made two or three attempts before she could fasten her grip on the boat. Just at this moment little Harry Harshman's head appeared at one side of the boat, and young Black instantly grabbed him by the hair, raised him up, caught under his arms, swung him into the boat and shook him until he became conscious; and the first words Harry uttered were, 'I am so glad you saved me.' Then Black looked for Blake Hinds and saw him go under probably for the last time; but he had kept sight of Blake before and thought he was getting along all right and was nearing the shore. Upon seeing Blake disappear, and being anxious to save those clinging to his boat, Black rowed to the south side of the river, landing Mrs. Owen and her son, and Harry Harshman in safety. Then Black started at once to rescue Rev. and Mrs. Harshman who had managed to reach a snag near shore on the north side of the river, where Mr. Harshman was holding his fatigued wife above water and clinging with one hand to the snag, himself being almost exhausted. With supernatural strength (not skill, for the boy had rowed the first time on Monday of last week), Black shot his boat across the channel, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Harshman in, and landed them in safety on the oppoturn, spread the news as rapidly as possible. In a short time quite a number volunteered their services, secured an extra skiff or two and began a systematic search for the drowned boy, probably an hour after he went under, which was about 3:15 p. m. The first indication of having come into contact with the body was 11 o'clock Friday night, when a gang of men were working in a riffle about a quarter of a mile below where the boy went under. At this point the grappling hooks brought to surface the extra pair of pants which the unfortunate boy held in his hand when he leaped from the boat; and it is supposed the hooks wrenched the pants from his grasp and thereby dislodged the body which was swept beyond their reach by a strong current and carried farther down the stream. This supposition was doubted by some, and in order to make no mistake, diligent search was made above as well as below this particular point. They toiled all that night and continued all day Saturday without avail. It was thought best to take a rest Saturday night and renew search Sunday morning with a larger force, which they did. On Sunday morning more persons offered their services to continue the search than there were places to fill, there being only a few boats and draging devices obtainable; but work went on with vigor all day long, and yet without hopeful result. Search was resumed Monday morning, and noon arrived without any hopeful indications. Shortly after noon hour, Messrs. J. W. Nicodemus, son Oscar and Frank Baxter had reason to believe that they had located the body in the riffle on the north side of the river, about 100 yards above what is known as Smith's bridge. Becoming tired and hungry they went to dinner. In their absence, two boats lay anchored a few rods below the place where these men had been toiling, and parties were in the boats watching for the body. In fact, quite a number of persons on the bridge and along the river banks were watching every floating object. At 1:30 it was announced that the body was discovered floating near the bank about 200 feet above Smith's bridge, and that John Mellor and Geo. Swigert were the first to reach it and secure it until assistance and conveyance arrived for its removal. The body was

A BOY IS DROWNED

While Boating With a Party of Campers Out Fishing.

BLAKE HINDS, THE VICTIM

Of a Watery Grave, More from Fright Than Real Danger—Others were Saved by Help and Presence of Mind.

One of the saddest things that ever occurred in this community, took place last Friday afternoon at Daugherty's island in the Tuscarawas river about a mile east of Newcomerstown corporation line. A fishing party consisting of Lester Bucher, Lloyd Black, Clarence Owen, Blake Hinds, Walter Hinds, Doyle Bricker and Clarence Harshman, under the care of Rev. C. W. Harshman, had gone into camp on Monday morning of last week and intended to break camp Saturday evening. Last Friday the camp was visited by Mrs. Owen and daughter Leota, Mrs. Harshman, daughter Bessie and son Harry. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon they all decided to take a boat ride. Two small skiffs were provided and were occupied as follows: Skiff No. 1 contained Mr. and Mrs. Harshman, their two sons Clarence and Harry, and Mrs. J. C. Owen. Skiff No. 2, carried Lloyd Black, Blake and Walter Hinds, Clarence Owen and Lester Bucher. Doyle Bricker remained in camp; Bessie Harshman and Leota Owen amused themselves on the south side of the river gathering shells. They started from above camp a short distance and let their boats float. A wire had been stretched across the river, just below camp, for the boys to hang onto while in swimming, and to attach their boats to while fishing. This wire was forgotten, for the moment, by those in Mr. Harshman's boat; they suddenly ran against it, and the boat whirled sidewise and capsized before they could get the wire out of the way. The accident frightened site side of the river. He had been the means of rescuing five persons and deserves a medal for his presence of mind, his good judgment and bravery.

We now take up another thread of the story concerning the capsized boat, which floated down the river. Just as the boat capsized, Doyle Bricker, the best swimmer in the fishing party, was standing on shore near camp. He instantly made a long dive for the capsized boat, reached it, turned it right-side up, pushed it within reach of Clarence Harshman who was struggling for his life, and with one hand on the boat, Bricker took it ashore while young Harshman clung to the side of the boat, which was half full of water; and so it might truly be said that Doyle Bricker saved Clarence Harshman's life.

The thoughts of all then turned to Blake Hinds who, having leaped from the boat with his camera in one hand and an extra pair of pants in the other, thoughtlessly put himself to great disadvantage either to help himself or anyone else; but he was probably so excited that he didn't think what a hindrance the articles would be to him. He let loose of the camera, however, but clung to the pants. The first effort made toward his recovery was by Rev. Harshman and Lloyd Black, who thought they saw the camera floating some distance down the river, and supposed that young Hinds still held it in his grasp. The two immediately got into a skiff and rowed vigorously toward the object, but it proved to be a floating snag, about which had clustered weeds and other debris. They returned in their boat with a feeling of disappointment.

The next thing to do was to communicate the sad news to the people in town and institute immediate search for the body of young Hinds. Just then Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Black, parents of the boy who saved so many that day, appeared at the river's brink in a buggy, on a visit to the camp. They were surprised to learn what had happened, and at once drove to Jones' residence at the pumping station and called up the chief operator at the bloated to 3 or 4 times its natural size, and it remained in Undertaker Lydick's morgue until Wednesday morning before it could be reduced and prepared for burial. Memorial services will be held at the M. E. church at 2 p. m. to-day (Wednesday) when Presiding Elder Henthorne, Revs. Dunbar, Shurtz and Harshman will make brief remarks.

It is well known to most of our readers that the unfortunate subject of this sketch was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hinds. His full name was Sanford Blake Hinds, and he would have been 15 yrs. old the 29th of next December. He was of an amiable disposition, obedient, companionable and obliging, and was friendly with everybody. His tragic death cast a deep gloom over the entire community, and no one can tell how greatly he will be missed.

We are at a loss to say who or what persons sympathized most with the grief-stricken parents and near relatives, or did the most toward the recovery of the body. Let this be as it may; there was no one but what felt a pang of sorrow and would have rendered whatever aid they could, and we feel sure the parents appreciate this fact, and are inexpressibly thankful for every effort made to recover their son's body, and for every word of sympathy and comfort; and especially for the extreme self-sacrifice of those who risked their lives in the water, toiled without sleep, hungry and tired, until the last hour of search. No one can imagine the relief that came to the hearts of all when word was received that the body was recovered, and it will be years before the sad incident is forgotten.

GRANDMOTHER HINDS

Mrs. Mary Ann Hinds died Friday, July 26, at the home of her daughter, Flora D. Hinds of Canton, at the age of 85 years.

Grandmother Hinds, as she was familiarly known, was a remarkably well preserved woman, and enjoyed excellent health until about a year ago when she was taken seriously ill. She apparently recovered and was able to go about again as usual. Last February she went to Canton for a visit with her daughters, Flora Hinds and Mrs. Walter, and in May was taken down sick in bed. The family noted her gradual loss of vitality and realized that the end was drawing near.

Since the death of her husband, Oct. 10, 1908, Mrs. Hinds has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. D. C. Whiting of this city, making extended visits from time to time with the other children.

Mary Ann Huff was born in Belmont county Oct. 3, 1833. After her marriage to Westley Hinds, they resided for some time in the Rodney Run neighborhood.

Later they removed to Newcomerstown, then to Iowa where they resided over a year, then returned to this neighborhood. Mrs. Hinds was the mother of nine children, six of whom survive. They are: Mrs. R. H. Phillips of Oresana, Ill., Ezra Hinds of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. H. P. Walter and Flora D. Hinds of Canton, Elisha Hinds and Mrs. D. C. Whiting of this city.

Mrs. Hinds united with the U. B. church at Everals many years ago.

The body was brought to this city Saturday night in D. L. Lydick's auto hearse. Funeral services were held on Sunday at the Whiting home on Main st., conducted by Rev. M. L. Oliver. Burial was made beside the grave of the husband in the local cemetery.

ON EXTENDED VISIT

Elisha Hinds left Tuesday for a two weeks' visit with his son, Clifford Hinds and family of Canton. From there he will go for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Belle Phillips at Decatur, Ill., and with his cousins at Kansas City. He will then go to Southern California, and later visit with his sister, Flora Hinds at San Francisco, and his brother, Ezra Hinds at Portland, Oregon, returning home next spring via the northern route.

WESTLEY HINDS.

Mr. Westley Hinds, one of the pioneer citizens of this locality, died at his rural home about 3 miles northwest of Newcomerstown last Saturday morning, Oct. 10, at the age of 83 years and 20 days, of general debility. He was born Sept. 20, 1825, and was married to Mary A. Huff, Oct. 29, 1849. Their union was blest with nine children, six of whom are living—Mrs. Belle Phillips of Illinois, Ezra Hinds of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Ara Walters of Canton, Elisha Hinds and Mrs. D. C. Whiting, jr. of this city and Flora Hinds of the homestead. The aged wife and mother also survives. Mr. Hinds united with the U. B. church about 45 years ago, lived a consistent christian, was a good husband, kind father and obliging neighbor. The funeral services were held from his late residence Monday afternoon conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. S. Jones, and interment was made in the Newcomerstown cemetery.

GRANDMOTHER HINDS

Mrs. Mary Ann Hinds died Friday, July 26, at the home of her daughter, Flora D. Hinds of Canton, at the age of 85 years.

Grandmother Hinds, as she was familiarly known, was a remarkably well preserved woman, and enjoyed excellent health until about a year ago when she was taken seriously ill. She apparently recovered and was able to go about again as usual. Last February she went to Canton for a visit with her daughters, Flora Hinds and Mrs. Walter, and in May was taken down sick in bed. The family noted her gradual loss of vitality and realized that the end was drawing near.

Since the death of her husband, Oct. 10, 1908, Mrs. Hinds has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. D. C. Whiting of this city, making extended visits from time to time with the other children.

Mary Ann Huff was born in Belmont county, Oct. 3, 1833. After her marriage to Westley Hinds, they resided for some time in the Rodney Run neighborhood.

Later they removed to Newcomerstown, then to Iowa where they resided over a year, then returned to this neighborhood. Mrs. Hinds was the mother of nine children, six of whom survive. They are: Mrs. R. H. Phillips of Oreana, Ill., Ezra Hinds of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. H. P. Walter and Flora D. Hinds of Canton, Elisha Hinds and Mrs. D. C. Whiting of this city.

Mrs. Hinds united with the U. B. Church at Everals many years ago. The body was brought to this city Saturday night in D. L. Lydick's auto hearse. Funeral services were held on Sunday at the Whiting home on Main st., conducted by Rev. M. L. Oliver. Burial was made beside the grave of the husband in

MR. AND MRS. WESLEY HINDS.

They Were Married October 28, 1849.

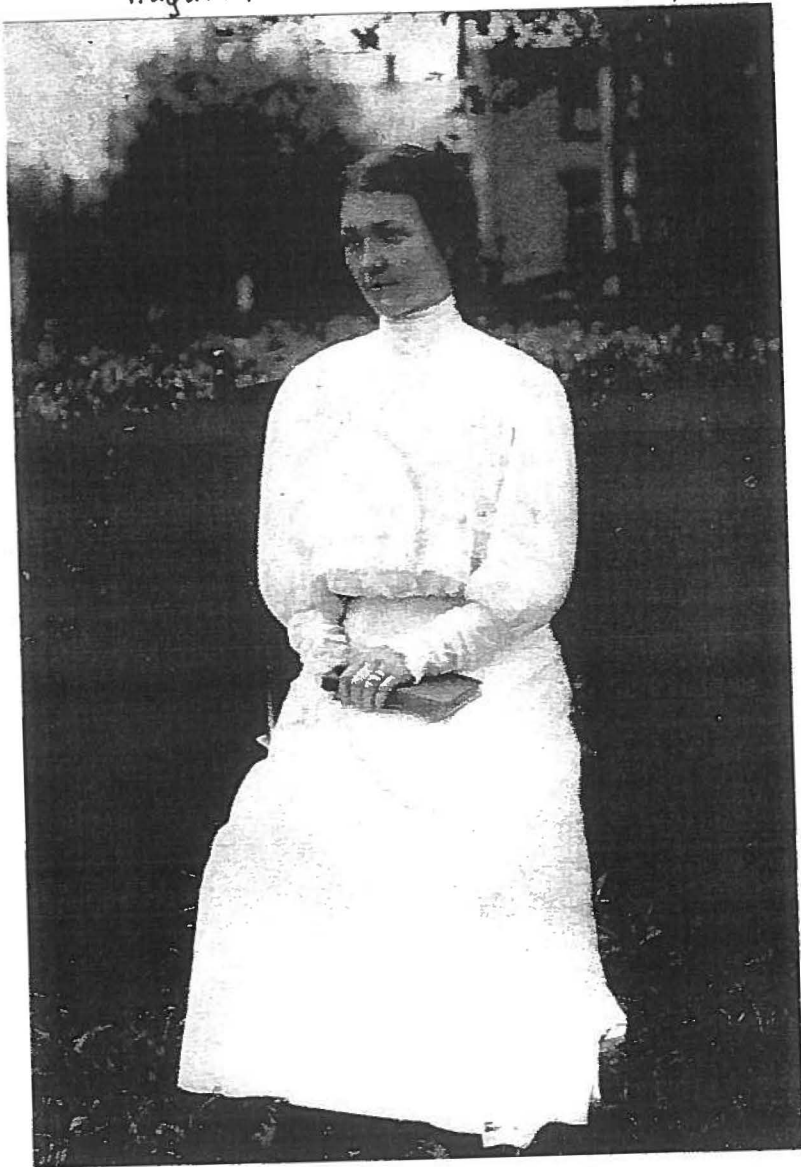

If Uncle Wesley Hinds and the good wife should live until October 28 next, they will have been married just 55 years. Nine children have been born to them, and what is most remarkable there has not been a natural death in the family in all these years. A son born in 1852 was killed in a mine in 1879, but aside from this casualty, death has not come to break the home circle and mar their happiness. Uncle Wes was 24 years old when they were married, but his bride had just passed her 16th birthday. Mrs. Hinds was born in the township in which she now resides. Aside from a short time that they lived in the west, her entire life has been spent in the neighborhood of her present home. While in Iowa, Mr. Hinds turned his attention to the restaurant business, but a fire burnt up his business, and some time after they packed up their few belongings and returned to Coshocton county.

Everybody in this section knows this fine old couple, and scores have enjoyed their hospitality. It is a pleasure to note that they are both hale and hearty, are abundantly supplied with this world's goods, and may live, both of them, to enjoy their 75th wedding anniversary.

The Hinds Family

I found an article in a Large Atlas/ Historical Book of Tuscarawas County, Ohio of 1908, located in the Newcomerstown Public Library. It reads as follows:

Elisha and Nancy Berry Hinds of German descent moved in April, 1836, to Adams Township, Coshocton County, with several children of whom one was Elias, born December 1, 1823. Elias Hinds on October 1, 1856, married Susan Ann Phillips who was born February 7, 1831, in Cuyahoga County, New York, whence she came in 1838 to Lafayette Township, Coshocton County, with her parents, Elijah H. and Kasiah Smith Phillips. In 1853 they moved with several children to Adams Township, where Elias and Susan A. Hinds began their married life on a farm, where he died, February 25, 1884, and she died, March 6, 1887. They had thirteen children, of whom nine reached maturity and six are living. (1908) Of these, John Hinds was born November 22, 1868, and was married on June 5, 1891, to Cora John, who was born April 16, 1872, and was the youngest of ten children of Alfred and Sarah Ann Norris John of Salem Township, Tuscarawas County. Alfred John was born March 20, 1832, and Sarah Ann Norris John was born November 16, 1833, and both are in good health. (1908) John and Cora Hinds have had three children. Sanford Blake, the eldest, was born December 29, 1892. On July 12, 1907, when a boat holding six of his friends upset in the Tuscarawas River, he plunged from his own boat to their rescue and was drowned, while all the rest were saved. A mission church in India has been named in honor of his noble heroism. Walter Ray was born September 30, 1894, and Frances Gertrude was born August 7, 1906. Mr. Hinds (John Hinds) at first began business on the paternal farm in Coshocton County, from which he moved March 1, 1893, to Newcomerstown, where he bought an interest in a general store that he purchased in full in the fall of 1894. After making several changes with profit, he purchased and remodeled his present property in 1900, where his business has prospered in a satisfactory degree, so that today as a reward for sagacious energy and affable attention, he has won the reputation of being a leading citizen in his community (Atlas, 1908.)

The page of this historical book from which I copied the preceding article also displayed two photographs, one of the outside view of the grocery store/residence and the other the inside view. John Hinds, his wife, and a few of his children are also in the picture.

Elisha and Nancy Berry Hinds also had a son named Westley Hinds, who was born in Ohio on September 20, 1825. Westley Hinds would marry Mary Ann Huff on October 29, 1849. Mary Ann Huff was born October 3, 1833 in Belmont County and her parents are not known at this time. Her obituary reads as follows:

Grandmother Hinds

Mrs. Mary Ann Hinds died Friday, July 26, at the home of her daughter, Flora D. Hinds of Canton, at the age of 85 years.

Since the death of her husband, Oct. 10, 1908, Mrs. Hinds has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. D.C. Whiting of this city, making extended visits from time to time with the other children.

Mary Ann Huff was born in Belmont County October 3, 1833. After her marriage to Westley Hinds, they resided for some time in the Rodney Run neighborhood.

Later, they removed to Newcomerstown, then to Iowa, where they resided over a year, then returned to this neighborhood. Mrs. Hinds was the mother of nine children, six of whom survive. Funeral services were held on Sunday at the Whiting home on Main St., conducted by Rev. M. L. Oliver. Burial was made beside the grave of her husband in the local cemetery.

The son, Ezra Hinds of Portland, Oregon died July 28th, 19-- and his obituary was also found in the Newcomerstown News.

Former Resident Dies in Oregon

Ezra Hinds, 82, native of Newcomerstown, died July 28th, at his home in Portland, Oregon.

Mr. Hinds moved from Ohio to Oregon in 1907 and his last visit to Ohio was two years ago. He is survived by a son, Francis L. Hinds, four daughters, Mrs. Mary DeBarthe with whom he lived, Mrs. Ruth Jessee, Rainer, Washington, Mrs. Nora McDougall Mrs. Ilia Cole, both of Portland; a brother, Elisha Hinds, First st. and a sister, Mrs Ara Walters, Canal st.

Burial was made at Portland, Saturday, July 28.

A daughter of Westley and Mary Ann Huff Hinds would be born December 8, 1857 and her name was Laura Ann Hinds. Westley died October 10, 1908 and Mary Ann Huff Hinds died July 26, 1918. They also had six other children- Ezra, Margaret, Flora, Ara, Isabella "Belle", and Ira. I am not sure if these are all the children or if it is completely accurate. Westley and Mary Ann are buried in the East State Street Cemetery in Newcomerstown, Ohio.

On April 22, 1880, Laura Ann Hinds married Phillip Schide, who was born May 26, 1847. Phillip and Laura would have three children- Harry G., Nora, and Augusta Mae Schide. I have found the place Laura was buried, the East Avenue Cemetery in New Philadelphia. She is laid beside Jacob Schide and his wife, Henrietta, along with their young daughter but, I still haven't found Phillip's grave or when he died. According to his daughter Nora Schide Eagon's obituary, he has already passed away before her death but reading Laura's obituary, it seems he may still be alive. This would mean he died sometime between December 9th, 1905 and January 2nd, 1919. Phillip and Laura 's daughter was Augusta Mae Schide, the wife of Jesse Leroy Wise, my great grandfather.

From a book at the Newcomerstown Library titled "The History of Coshocton County," I found the name Elias Hinds and a somewhat confusing history of the Hinds family.

Any information or feedback about the Hinds Family would be very appreciated.

COSHOCTON COUNTY, OHTO, ADAMS TOWNSHIP

HINDS SCHOOL, DISTRICT #1 Successor to the Corbit School Often called the Taylor School. (This information was copied from a copy that did not identify the name of the book or author.)

The first schoolhouse in Adams Township was built about 1825 on the southeast quarter of Section 18, Robert Corbit's homestead, and this was the only school in the township for several years. The following is an account of this early school and its teachers, as told by historian Hill: "The first schoolhouse in the township was built about 1825 on the SE Quarter of Section 18, Robert Corbit's homestead. It was the usual log cabin, its dimensions about 22 feet square, built in the rough rude style prevalent in pioneer times; a puncheon floor, paper window panes, a huge fireplace occupying one entire end of the building were some of the features of this, as of nearly every other schoolhouse of that age. No portion of the lumber composing it was sawed. Perhaps the most finished piece of workmanship was the door. The split ash boards, from which it was made, had been shaved with a drawing knife to a tolerable degree of smoothness. The merest rudiments of an education could be obtained here at first. Reading and spelling often constituted the entire curriculum of study.

Few of the earliest schoolmasters possessed a knowledge of arithmetic. School books were rarities, and the few that could be collected were of a motley description. A single leaf sufficed Lewis Corbit, during his first term at school. His father had but one reader in his possession, and this, an older sister of Lewis must have; she had attended school before, however, and had made some advancement, consequently the first leaf contained the alphabet could be spared. This was torn out and pasted on a paddle for Lewis' use.'

"This was the only school held in the township for many years, and the attendance was accordingly very large at times. Among the families represented in the school may be mentioned the McFarlands, Evans, Richmonds, Norrises, Jones, Corbits, Pinkertons, Delongs, Shays, and Lemons. It was noted for the number of grownup young men who attended great strapping fellows, who weighed 200 or 225 pounds.

"John Berwick was the first teacher. He was succeeded by Thomas Pinkerton, one of the early settlers of the Township. Henry Delong was probably the next teacher. He was of Welsh birth, and had been a glass-blower at Wellsburg, Virginia for a number of years before coming here. He possessed a fair education, and taught several terms. James Jones, another settler, followed Delong. Though a strictly temperate man himself, one of the few who abstained entirely from the use of the popular beverage of the day, he could not avoid treating his scholars to the customary holiday allowance of two gallons of whiskey. George Lemons and Thomas Campbell also taught here later. Until 1832 when the township was organized, there was probably but this one school within its limits. In that year, however, the trustees divided the township into three school districts; the first beginning at the SE corner of the Township and ending Robert Taylor's north line; the second beginning at Robert's north line and extending to the north line of the township; the third comprising the western half of the township, the military line being the division between the east and the west. This division would indicate that the eastern half of the township was more thickly settled at this time than the western half. Another district was soon formed, and the others as they became needed, until there were eight, the present number."

This early Corbit School was probably adjacent to the Corbit Cemetery on Evans Creek. Today the Cemetery lies a mass of brambles and brush on the West Side of State Route 751 at the intersection with County Road 251. Adams Township was created in June 1832, and at a meeting of the newly elected Adams Township Trustees (Thomas Powell, Joshua Wood and Archibald Leech) held September 13, 1832, the township was divided into three school districts. District 1 "beginning at the SE corner of the Township and ending at R. Taylor's north line." At a meeting of the Adams Township trustees on Nov. 4, 1836, Richard Taylor (died 1908), James Jones and Jacob Lanning were appointed directors of District No. 1; in 1838 District #1 school directors appointed were Richard Taylor, Elisha Hinds (1801-before 1880) and William Curry.

A map of these school districts was drawn, and an explanatory note in the minutes of the Trustees' meeting indicated that District No. 1 commences at the SE corner of the Township and runs from thence west to the Military Line to the corners of Benjamin Headley's and William Curry's lands, from thence east to the County line, and from thence south to the place of beginning." Thus, roughly the southeast quarter of Adams Township, was placed in District #1.

October 6, 1837 Robert Corbit gave a lease for a site for a schoolhouse for a period of 21 years to James Jones, Jacob Lanning and Richard Taylor, directors of District #1 for the purpose of erecting a district schoolhouse - $\frac{1}{4}$ acre from his farm in section 19, Township 6 Range 4 (12-49)

March 2, 1840 the Trustees extended district #1 - " in the north boundary line westward to the NW corner of land owned and occupied by Abel Cain, thence south to land of William and Thomas Norris, thence west to NW corner of said Norris land, thence south to the Township line so as to contain the lands of Abel Cain, Samuel Norris, John W. Kyers and William and Thomas Norris."

In 1840 the Trustees struck off and attached to Oxford township for school purposes from District #1: "commencing at SW corner of land owned by Jesse Poland ... and running thence due north to the NW corner of said land, thence east to County Line, thence south to Township line, thence west to place of beginning ..." - thus decreasing District #1 by this amount of land.

Directors for District #1 appointed Oct. 11, 1842 were Robert Corbit, Richard Taylor and William Z. Hill.

William B. Scott and W. Hines (Name may have been misspelled and could be related to Will Hinds mentioned below???) were paid in April 1855 $169.40 for the building of a new schoolhouse for District #1, and James Warren was paid $7.49 for a new stove for the new log schoolhouse. Youth enumeration had increased from 44 to 74, perhaps because more wanted to attend school in the new log schoolhouse.

The Taylor Methodist Episcopal Church, organized in 1832 after meetings in the schoolhouse and at the homes of its members for several years, built a log church adjacent to the Taylor Cemetery. Today the Taylor Cemetery is on the West side of State Route 751 at its junction with County Road 252b. The schoolhouse where the earliest Taylor Church services were held, was, no doubt, the Corbit School.

Built on Taylor land, the new log Hinds schoolhouse was often called the Taylor School. It was the successor of the earlier Corbit School, and was almost due east of the old Corbit School in the SW corner of Section 21. Mr. Will Hinds and Miss Emma Miller 1871-1967, recalled that a portion of the old log schoolhouse stood close to the frame schoolhouse built in 1883 where they attended school. If a deed was given for this site, it was never filed. A lane westward from County Road 252 b to the Hinds School site, was had in later years, and one could easily reach the schoolhouse by the lane to the flat-topped knob surrounded by hills where it stood.

Teachers by school years: with pay (Other teachers were listed but not copied)

1859 R. Rankin $79

John Hinds $36 - son of Elisha Hinds, he had a store for many years in Newcomerstown.

Eliza A. Stonehocker, sister of Nancy J. Stonehocker, in her Diary under the date of Nov. 6, 1865: "Monday. Nancy and I came home together. She commenced school at Hinds today. I only had school (Everal School) until half past two on account of not having coal."

Miss Emma Miller 1871-1967, was a pupil at Hinds school and remembered Paul T. Jones, Baxter Carr and Grant Clemmens as some of her teachers. She recalled that for an entertainment one year, they built a "sausage mill" which looked like a huge box with a door, and a large "grinding handle". They would send three boys through the door into the box, and out of the other end, after much grinding, would come huge sausages they had made our of red cloth and stuffed with straw! "It made a big hit" she said, "and we called it the 'Devil's Sausage Mill.'" from the Age, March 4, 1882: "We understand a movement is on foot looking to the erection of a new school house in the Hinds district, a necessity certainly all will acknowledge. In connection with this, we wish to say a few words on the progress of the school up to this point this winter. The management of this school this term is far from what it should be. We have heard repeated charges of the lack of discipline, the teacher not having sufficient courage to enforce order. Charges of insufficient recitations in the different branches are also very loud amongst the pupils. How is this, this being common gossip, and directors do not investigate the veracity of these charges?"

Trouble in the one-room schools was often "aired" in the Coshocton newspapers, as illustrated by the above news item. But one item never sufficed. There usually were rebuttal and counter charges. In this case rebuttal came in the Age, March 14, 1882: "In your last issue, a correspondent at Evans Cree, Adams Township, made a bold attack on the teacher at Hinds School accusing him of lack of courage to enforce order in his school, and also of insufficient instruction in many branches. We do not know who this correspondent is and we care less, but we do know who this teacher is. And we know he is not wanting in courage to enforce what he undertakesand as for his insufficiency or his qualifications, we would just say that he has heretofore been classed with Coshocton's best teachers, and always commands the highest wages paid in our County Schools. We know of several schools in which he has been uncommonly successful as a disciplinarian and instructor, and never was such a charge as Clodhopper hurled at him excepting by those that are too ignorant to appreciate the labors of a live and energetic teacher...."

The teacher in 1882 was W. Baxter Carr. Evidently the School's directors did not take this criticism of Carr seriously, as they re-hired him for the fall term.

1883 - Hinds School has a new schoolhouse! Clark M. Carr / Harrison Howell was paid $830 for the building. Thomas Kane was paid $145 for seats & desks. James Fenton was paid $14 for a new stove. The old schoolhouse was sold to Charles F. Davis for $5.00. A lawn fete followed, with the proceeds going for supplies for the new schoolhouse.

A report by Teacher George W. Mowl made at the end of the winter term of 1890 appeared in the Age, April 3, 1891: "Report of Hinds School in District No. 1 Adams Township for the term beginning Sept. 28, 1890 and ending March 19, 1891. The following were the average grades for the term of six months: Mary Hinds 99, Bertha Corbit 99, Eva Hinds 99, Benton Miller 96, Eva Miller 93, May Elliott 92, John Patterson 91, Lena Fenton 90, Elmer Corbit 90, Jessie Huff 89, John Corbit 87, Charles Corbit 86. Attendance, punctuality and deportment were considered in the above grades. The following pupils were neither absent or tardy during the term: Bertha Corbit, Gertrude Carr, Eva Hinds, Alvin Hinds and Frank Corbit. Number enrolled 23, average daily attendance 20. I am pleased with the zeal and energy displayed by the pupils. If the same is continued, success will surely crown your efforts. I also tender my hearty thanks to both pupils and parents for the kindness and hospitality with which I have been treated while in your midst. Hoping to meet you all again, I am George W. Mowl, Teacher."

Lightning's Awful Work

On Monday afternoon, July 15, 1901, Mrs. Caroline Huff, who resides on the Bakersville road just north of Newcomerstown, went blackberry picking. Accompanying her were her daughters, Mrs. Ida Huff Thornton and Myrtle Huff, and her grandchildren, Fannie and Ray Thornton.

A storm coming up, the party took refuge in an old straw shed located nearby on the McMackin farm. While they were in the shed, it was struck by a bolt of lightning.

Ezra Huff, 18 year old son of Caroline Huff, had gone to a neighbor's to sharpen his scythe and did not return home until after the storm. On the way home, he noticed the shed had collapsed but he did not stop.

When he arrived home and found the family gone, he at once divined that they had gone berrying and feared they might have taken refuge in the shed. He ran the half-mile or more distance to the shed as fast as he could and there, a ghastly spectacle met him. Under the debris but in plain sight lay his dead mother while from under the mass, faint cries for help came from his sister, Myrtle, and little Fannie.

The agonized boy tugged in vain at the debris. His piteous cries for help reverberating over the hilltops soon brought the startled neighbors. Strong arms at once bent to the task of rescuing the living, their feeble cries indicating their location.

The first rescued was Myrtle who was found about six feet from the south side of the shed. Little Ray had evidently been in her arms when the bolt came and from all appearances was killed instantly. Myrtle was fully conscious, even though one shoe had been torn from her foot and her limbs were paralyzed. She told how the tragedy had befallen them. She died in her home two hours later.

A few feet from Myrtle and the baby lay little Fannie. When the child was finally reached, W.W. Norris put his hands under her body and gently drew her from under the straw. It was found that the lightning had torn off one of her shoes, ripping it from the top, down the instep, and almost severing the sole from the upper.

The body of Ida Thornton was found near the central support of the shed in a position which suggested that death had come sure and swift. Her clothing to her waist was literally torn in shreds indicating that the main charge had descended the post near which she had been sitting.

Just north of Ida's position, near the north extremity of the shed lay Caroline Huff, mother and grandmother. Her clothing was also riddled and she lay half exposed outside the collapsed shed, thus being the first one discovered.

Undertaker Lydick conveyed the bodies to Mrs. Huff's home on Bakersville road. Little Fannie was taken to Mrs. John McCoy's near the base of Coalport Hill where Mrs. McCoy is ministering motherly care.

Mr. Huff had died of consumption three years ago so today's calamity leaves three sons, George, Addison and Ezra. George is married, leaving Addison and Ezra alone at a home where the love of a mother and sisters is forever shut out.

Merchant is Missing.

Philip Huff, Fresno, Coshocton county, merchant, has disappeared and his wife and friends are at a loss to account for his mysterious actions.

It is rumored in Fresno that he has departed for the west, but the distracted wife has found that he bought a ticket for Cleveland.

Huff has dwelt in Fresno four years, and has been a prominent merchant; he and his brother having been partners till recently, when the brother sold his share to a brother-in-law, Philip Arbogast.

Last Christmas Philip Huff, who is a man of middle age, went to Coshocton and wedded Mrs. May Fowler, and they had lived happily. No cause is assigned for the strange action of Huff.
