Probable Lineage of this Branch of the Leech Family

In the early 1700s, there was a Leech family in the New Jersey area.

Samuel Leech, Sr (1730 - 1820)	m. (1757)	Mary Frey (1738 -1821)
Samuel Leech, Jr.	m.	Margaret Fulton
(1768 - 1815)	(ca. 1790)	(1770 - 1863)
	ĺ
Archibald Leech (1796 - 1859)	m. (1824)	Sarah Ferguson (1805 - 1854)
Samuel Leech (1824 - 1905)	m. (1855)	Sophia Mizer (1835 - 1859)
	m. (1860)	Sarah Riggle (1829 - 1909)
Samuel Ferguson Le (1871 - 1943)	ech m. (1896)	Ola B. Johns (1876 - 1962)

Newcomerstown and a current resident of Lakewood, Ohio. The author's work constitutes a multi-volume collection of much information on former citizens of the Newcomerstown area and other information relating to the area. He also notes some other sources for possible additional information. In 1987, the first volume of this set, covering 1898-1909, was published; subsequently, additional volumes have been, and are continuing to be, published. For his work on this set, the area should be grateful. Copies of this set are found in several area locations, including the Newcomerstown Public Library.

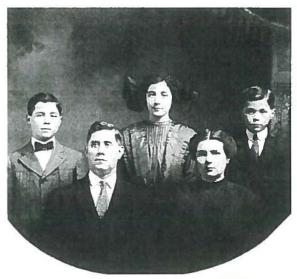

Over the years, there have been several variations in the name of the local newspaper in Newcomerstown; for consistency in this account, the name used throughout will be The Newcomerstown News.

taken, most likely at Ola B.'s insistence. For future generations, the single most outstanding feature of this photograph would be the large bow in Eunice Elizabeth's hair.

At some unknown time (and the scribe would guess about 1910), Samuel Ferguson and Ola B., with their three children, moved to a house at 333 West Main Street. (This house would serve as the family seat until 1962, when Ola B. died. This house is still standing, and, in addition to living quarters, it now has a beauty parlor.)

During the marriage of Samuel Ferguson and Ola B., Samuel Ferguson was the so-called breadwinner. There was, however, no doubt whatsoever as to who was really in charge, and it was Ola B. The scribe can even remember a neighbor who, calling upon the old comic strip characters of Maggie and Jiggs, always referred to Ola B. by the nickname of "Maggie."

Samuel Ferguson Leech, Ola B. (Johns) Leech, and their children about 1910. (Photographer unknown; ca. 1910.)

333 West Main Street, Newcomerstown, Ohio. The lattice work on the front porch was added after 1962. (Family photograph; 2001.)

Although she became a member of the Leech family in 1896, Ola B. maintained her strong ties to the many Johns families. A listing of those ties would be far too lengthy inclusion in this account. For illustrative purposes only, a 1919 news item from The Newcomerstown News. at 1 (September 3, 1919), is perhaps suggestive of the strength of those ties.

"...nothing but a few memories, and a bunch of empty foundry buildings..." would remain.⁵) In the period from about 1880 to 1900, Newcomerstown's population almost tripled, and, by 1900, Newcomerstown's population had grown to more than 2,600.

On April 2, 1900, Samuel Ferguson and Ola B. had the second of their three children: Eunice Elizabeth.⁶ She was born subsequent to this family's relocation to Newcomerstown. (For whatever reasons, and perhaps because this small family had then only recently moved from Bakersville to Newcomerstown, her birth was "not recorded" in 1900. In 1958, she filed an "application" to have her birth registered, and a journal entry ordering the registration was made shortly thereafter. The documents also state that Samuel Ferguson Leech was working at the James B. Clow Company at the time of her birth on April 2, 1900.)

In 1900, after this Leech family moved to Newcomerstown, they lived for a time in a house on a very small street that was parallel to the old canal that then ran through the middle of Newcomerstown. (This street, almost an alley, is often referred to by local residents as Main Extension; whether this street is officially so designated or not is not known; this small street now runs parallel to a part of Canal Street. The house itself is still standing, and it has the number 252 on it; for many years, fishing bait was sold from a shed at the front of the property.)

HAVERS Fishing Bait 1960's

On September 11, 1902, Samuel Ferguson and Ola B. had the third of their three children: Charles Russell. This birth took place in the house described in the immediately preceding paragraph. (Of Charles R. Leech, Sr., more will be stated in Chapter Six.)

It was probably about 1910 that a formal photograph of the family was

I'm so excited to talk to you and share these photos with. I hope you don't mind me giving you a bit of homework. Ha.

- 1) Grandma John is what is written with this picture. Don't know which Johns wife.
- 2) The wild hair man. Looks like the came from the fields or from Civil War
- 3) Old Woman could very well be Hannah Kuntz, Hiram Johns wife
- 4) Grandma Brown: There is a Cecillia Brown that married Russell Herman Johns (1904-1948), the 1st born son of Alfred Harrison Johns (1877-1952), who is the 1st born son of Burr Johns (1854-?), who is the 1st born son of Alfred Johns (1832-1914). I have no idea why I would have a picture of Cecillia Browns side of the family. I seem to have a mix of things.
- 5) Cute couple; I think this is one of Hiram's sons that never lived to see 1900.
- 6) Jacob Edward, Daniel, Phillip, Lorena (Laura), Hannah Johns
- 7) I think this is William Johns with sons Leander & James
- 8) Daniel & Margaret, Phillip & Margaret Johns
- 9) 4 Unknown guys BUT the man in back on the right looks like the same guy in #5 only older.
- 10) Alfred Johns? Maybe and could #1 be his wife?
- 11) William Johns? 1898 I have another picture of these 2 guys that says John Vinton Gadd and son John Wesley "Horny" Gadd but it's not them
- 12) son of above guy

1) Ora Johns (Daniel's girl), 2) Grace Gadd (Mary's girl), 3) John Westley Gadd (Hannah's boy), 4) Daniel Kees Gadd (Hannah's boy), 5) Alice Johns (Daniel's girl), 6) Clarence Gadd (Hannah's boy), 7) George Westley Johns, 8) John Harrison Stocker (Lorena's boy).

- 9) Margaret Johns (wife of), 10) Daniel Johns, 11) Mary Johns Gadd (wife of), 12) James Franklin Gadd (called Frank), 13) Lydia Kees Johns, 14) Hannah Johns Gadd (wife of), 15) John Vinton Gadd (called Vint) 3rd row:
- 16) Phillip Johns, 17) Jacob Edward Johns, 18) F. G. Stocker (Lorena's boy).

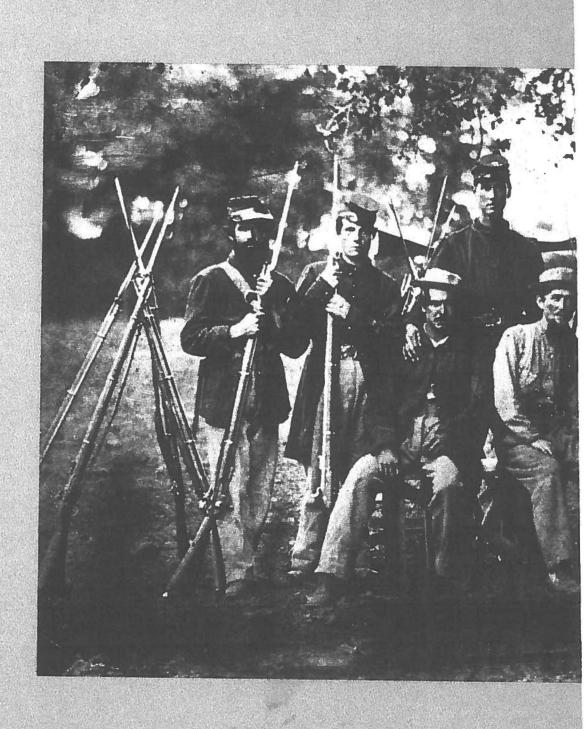

How about that? I'm sure your mind is spinning with all these names and faces. I'll let you digest it and when I see you in October, I'll give you some more Johns photos. Ha. Did you catch that I said George W's middle name is Westley? I think it is because Hannah named her son John Westley and the Westley name isn't in the Gadd side of the family. I am only assuming that #8 and #18 are Lorena Johns Stocker's boy and I think this because of the 1900 Census where a grandson Stocker is living with George, Lydia and Edward (Jacob) and Lydia list 7 kids, only 5 are living. Maybe this group photo was taken after Lorena's funeral. Lydia, Mary, Hannah and Margaret didn't get all dressed up for nothing. I'm going to research that date further.

I will call you next week. Email me when you get a chance. Take care.

Chapter Four

Some Ohio Johns Families

The names of John, with no "s," and of Johns, with an "s," are probably Welsh and English in origin, and the original meaning was "...descendant of John (gracious gift of Jehovah)." ¹

In the Bethel Cemetery, Salem Township, Tuscarawas County, Ohio, there are some very old gravestones and some very recent gravestones with the name of John, with no "s," and others with the name of Johns, with an "s." In the Tuscarawas County area, there were, and still are, many individuals with the name of John, with no "s," and others with the name of Johns, with an "s."

For several reasons, some of which will become apparent, it is difficult to trace successfully and confidently this line of ancestry into the 1700s. Only from about the early 1800s is this line of ancestry "relatively" clear. Moreover, from the early 1800s until about 1900, the name in this line of ancestry was John, with no "s." (Whatever the reasons for the addition of the "s" were, such reasons do not seem to be known now.) The early 1800s, then, is the starting point for this chapter. Even so, this starting point is still a long time ago.

In 1803, Thomas Jefferson, only this nation's third president, was in the first of his two terms as president (1801-1809). In the same year, Ohio was, it will be recalled, admitted as a state.

In this line of ancestry, the first specific person to be considered in any detail is Hiram John, with no "s."

On January 16, 1804, Hiram John was born.⁴ He was probably born in Virginia.⁵ For an unknown period of time, he might also have lived in Pennsylvania.

Probably in the early 1820s, Hiram John apparently departed from Pennsylvania for Ohio.⁶ Whether he was merely passing through Pennsylvania or actually living in Pennsylvania is not clear. It was then that he probably also came to Harrison County, Ohio. (In 1813, Harrison County was formed; its land area came from Jefferson County to the east and from Tuscarawas County to the west.) It was also probably in Harrison County that he met his bride to be, Hannah.

Hannah was probably born on January 3, 1804, in the area later to be known as Harrison County. Her maiden name was, at least according to some sources, either Koontz or Hidey, but there are some questions with respect to her name. In 1825, Hiram John and Hannah were married.

In 1826, Hiram and Hannah John had their first child. In total, they would have 12 children. ¹⁰ In their early married life, they apparently lived for a time in Jefferson County. ¹¹

In 1826, John Quincy Adams was the nation's president. In 1828, Andrew Jackson would defeat President Adams in his reelection bid. Andrew Jackson would become the seventh president, and he would serve two terms (1829-1837).

About 1835, Hiram and Hannah John, with their children at that time, moved to Salem Township, Tuscarawas County, Ohio. Hiram had obtained about 140 acres in the area from the Federal government, and he "...had a sheepskin deed dated 1835 signed by President Andrew Jackson..." This land was about a mile north of the small community of Wolf and about five miles north of Newcomerstown. This area was, at times, referred to as the "Buckhorn" because of the presence of a branch of a small creek known as Buckhorn Creek.

On the newly-acquired land, Hiram John built "a good log house." ¹³ He also cleared some of the wooded and hilly land for farming, a tough job in anyone's assignment book. Between 1836 and 1850, Hiram and Hannah would have seven more children to complete the total of 12 children they would have. With children and with farming, it is unlikely that either one of them ever had much easy rocking-chair time.

During the Civil War, Hiram and Hannah John had three sons who served in the army.¹⁴ The service of each of these three sons is noted briefly below.¹⁵

On August 21, 1862, Jasper John and George W. John entered the army together. They became members of the 126th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. 16

Jasper John was "missing in action" on and after May 6, 1864, which was the second day of the historic battle at the Wilderness, Virginia. ¹⁷ Subsequent investigations failed "...to elicit any further information relative to..." Jasper John. ¹⁸

George W. John served more than two years and nine months in the army. ¹⁹ After his discharge, he spent most of his life in the Albany and Newcomerstown areas. ²⁰

William John entered the army on March 1, 1865. (William was the oldest of the three John brothers to serve in the army, and he was the only one of them who was married when he entered the army.) He became a member of the 194th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry.²¹ He served only about eight months in the army.²² After his discharge, he returned to the family farm near Wolf. (Since William is in the direct line of ancestry involved in this account, more as to him will be stated later in this chapter.)

For some years after the Civil War, Hiram and Hannah John would continue to live and to work on the farm.

On March 7, 1876, Hiram John, more that 72 years of age, died.²³

Died, at his residence, near Haunsburg, March 8 [sic], 1876, Mr. Hiram John, in the 73rd year of his age, and was followed by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances to his last resting place in Bethel Cemetery. We tender our sympathy to the bereaved ones, and trust their loss is his eternal gain. They cannot mourn as those who have no hope.²⁴

Hannah lived another five years. On May 8, 1881, she, more than 77 years of age, died.²⁵ Each was buried at the Bethel Cemetery.²⁶ (The stone for the graves of Hiram and Hannah was located, but it is very weathered and worn by the elements and time.)

William John has previously been mentioned in this account. He was born on July 31, 1837, and he was the seventh child born to Hiram and Hannah John.

On or about May 4, 1861, less than a month after the Civil War had started at Fort Sumter, South Carolina, William John married Sarah Elizabeth Norris.²⁷ The marriage reportedly took place in New

Certificate of marriage of William John and Sarah Norris. (Records, Tuscarawas County Probate Court, New Philadelphia, Ohio; 1861.)

Philadelphia, the county seat of Tuscarawas County.²⁸ Whether the beginning of the Civil War actually hastened, as the beginnings of wars often do, this marriage is not known, but one might well speculate that it did. About 1862, and long before William entered the army, he and Sarah Elizabeth had their first child, Melinda Alice.

On March 1, 1865, at Port Washington, Ohio, William John enlisted in the army.²⁹ (He was five feet, nine inches in height; he had a "dark" complexion, "hazel" eyes, and "auburn" hair.³⁰) He was sent to Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio, where the 194th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, was being organized. On March 9th, he was "mustered" into the 194th.³¹ Shortly after the 194th was organized, it departed from Camp Chase, and it was beyond the borders of Ohio about the middle of March. On March 20th, the 194th "passed through" Cumberland, Maryland, which is in the far western area of Maryland.³² The 194th was going southeast to Charles Town, West Virginia, which is in an area close to Virginia. The 194th was assigned to Major-General Thomas W. Egan's Division, "…composed of one Brigade of Eastern and one Brigade of Western Troops…."³³ In late March, the 194th was in the Shenandoah Valley. Shortly thereafter, on March 31st, William was assigned to "…detached duty with ambulance corps… by order of Bvt. Maj.-Gen. Egan…."³⁴

With the benefit of 20-20 hindsight, one now knows that the Civil War was nearing its end when William John entered the army on March 1, 1865. At that time, however, the view was much different.

In March, 1865, "...neither the South nor the Union knew with certainty when or how the war might end...." By "...the eve of April 1865...," the Civil War "...was not over. Not by a long shot...." Even when Richmond, Virginia, the Confederate capital, fell on April 3, 1865, "...the national nightmare was still far from over. As far as Lincoln could tell, the bloodshed could go on for months, even longer, if not on an organized battlefield, then on deadly guerilla terrain...."³⁷ On April 9, 1865, when Lee surrendered his Army of Northern Virginia to Grant at Appomattox Court House, Virginia, the Civil War did not automatically come to an end.

...Grant was acutely aware that on this day, what had occurred was

...Grant was acutely aware that on this day, what had occurred was the surrender of one army to another - not of one government to another.... The war was still very much on. There were a number of potentially troubling rebel commanders in the field. And there were still some 175,000 other Confederates under arms elsewhere: one-half in scattered garrisons and the rest in the three remaining rebel armies....³⁸

On April 10, 1865, the day after Lee's surrender of his army to Grant, Lee and Grant talked: "...Lee said to me [Grant] that the South was a big country and that we might have to march over it three or four times before the war entirely ended...." After Lincoln was shot on April 14th and died the next day, the Civil War's end undoubtedly seemed even more distant.

...[T]he shooting, and dying, and the war continued....

...The situation across the country was now volatile: since Lincoln's assassination the North was ablaze with fury at the South; hysteria was widespread; Jefferson Davis was still at large, calling for further resistance; and sporadic fighting was ongoing....⁴⁰

Without the benefit of 20-20 hindsight, William John probably could not have known that the Civil War was nearing its end when he enlisted in the army on March 1, 1865, and for some time thereafter.

As noted previously, William was detached from the 194th and assigned to the ambulance corps on March 31, 1865. This detached duty assignment apparently continued through June 30, 1865.⁴¹

During April of this 1865 period of William's detached duty assignment, he became afflicted with rheumatism in his left arm and shoulder. In July, he returned from his detached duty assignment to duty with the 194th. 42 About July, he became afflicted with the then rather common, but no less distressful, condition of diarrhea. In August, he still had this condition, which, in fact, had worsened. About August, the 194th "...was ordered to Washington City, where it... [performed] garrison duty...." About early September, William was sent to the hospital in Washington City because of his severe diarrhea. While he was in the hospital, he became afflicted with jaundice and vertigo. It seems likely that he, even when in the hospital, would have been assigned duties of some type. At some time in October, probably the middle of the month, he was released from the hospital. After his release from the hospital, it is not clear whether he performed any additional garrison duty in Washington City with the 194th, which continued to perform "...garrison duty until October 24, 1865, when it was mustered out in accordance with orders from the War Department."

On October 24, 1865, the 194th was mustered out at Washington City, and William John was mustered out with his company on the same date. On October 30th, William was discharged, probably at Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio. On October 31st, he apparently got home to Sarah Elizabeth on the family farm near Wolf. Trick or treat!

William was, once again, a farmer. He much preferred being a farmer to being a soldier. William and Sarah Elizabeth would work and live on the farm for many years. There would, however, be many difficult times, both economically and other, ahead for them.

One of those difficult times occurred just shortly after William's return from the army to the farm. Sadly, Melinda Alice, only about age three, died.

On August 20, 1866, President Andrew Johnson "formally declared" the end of the Civil War.⁴⁵ "...In effect, this [Johnson's proclamation] mark[ed]... the official end of the Civil War, but extremists on both sides of the political spectrum continue[d] to stir up discontent."⁴⁶

William and Sarah Elizabeth had a second child, a boy, and this son was named Jasper after William's "missing" brother. 47 Over about the next 15 years, William and Sarah Elizabeth would have five more children: Leander M. Johns, who would later live on Canal Street, Newcomerstown; Sarah E. "Pet" (Johns) Best, who would later live on Neighbor Street, Newcomerstown; Ola B. (Johns) Leech, who would later live on Main Street, Newcomerstown; James H. Johns, who would later live in numerous places, including several places in Newcomerstown, but his whereabouts were not always neatly defined; Lillie M. (Johns) Millburn, who would later live on Main Street, Newcomerstown. 48

As noted previously in this account, one economic national crisis followed another for about the next 25 years, and farmers were generally hard-pressed economically.

In 1873, the mad dash for riches that followed the Civil War ended in a prolonged slump that ground on for six interminable years....

...[The year of 1884] would prove to be a pivotal year for the country, marked by bank failures and panics....

The depression heralded by the June 1893 stock-market crash was one of such excruciating length, such grinding and unrelieved misery, that economic historians labeled it the Great Depression until that title was usurped in the 1930s.... [M]any people wondered whether America had paid too dear a price for the industrialization that had so quickly propelled it from an agrarian society to a world economic power.⁴⁹

Throughout all of these difficult economic times, William and Sarah Elizabeth remained members of the dwindling "agrarian society."

In the post-Civil War years, there were also medical problems for William. While his service in the army had been relatively brief in duration, he had developed a number of medical problems during that time. His health would never again be as good as when he entered the army.

...Prior to his [William's] enlistment [,] ... he was a sound robust man & free from ... [disabilities].... 50

...[William] was, and allways [sic] has been [,] a man of sober habits, and was considered a very healthy man [before he went into the army]. He was a good soldier allways [sic] ready for duty... [until he became ill while in the army]....⁵¹

From time to time, he had some particularly troublesome bouts with his army-related medical problems. As he grew older, these problems caused him increasing difficulties.

Despite William's continuing medical problems, he and Sarah Elizabeth had busy lives. With the rearing of their children and with farming, their lives could hardly have been otherwise. They and their children were also active members of the M.E. Society in Wolf.

Church, Wolf, Tuscarawas County, Ohio. This building was reportedly built in 1871. It seems likely that William John, Sarah Elizabeth (Norris) John, and their children attended this church. (Family photograph; 2001.)

By the early 1880s, the medical problems that William had developed in the army became more severe. About the late 1880s, William began the process of seeking a partial disability pension as a result of those problems. By way of affidavits, declarations, and other documents, William basically stated in effect as follows: that he served some of his army time in the Shenandoah Valley; that about April, 1865, he became afflicted with rheumatism in his left arm and shoulder; that about July, 1865, he developed diarrhea; that about September, 1865, he was sent to a hospital in Washington, D.C.; that while he was in the hospital, he contracted jaundice and vertigo; that these medical conditions and their adverse effects were continuing.⁵²

Some of William's former comrades, who also were long-time neighbors, additionally stated in their respective affidavits:

...[After William developed diarrhea] I could see that his [William's] color began to change and that he began to loose [sic] flesh. We were on the Shenandoah Valley. Our reg. was distributed from Summit Point to Stephenson at that time. [Summit Point is in West Virginia, and Stephenson is in Virginia, but both are near the West Virginia and Virginia line.] Our reg. was sent to Washington about the 20 or 25 of July.... [During this period William was ill with diarrhea.] All this time he did not asked [sic] to be excused from duty although urged to give up and go to the hospital....⁵³

...Soldier [William] while in the line of his duty and without fault or improper conduct on his part at or near Summit Point in the State of Virginia [probably West Virginia] about the summer of 1865 [probably April] incurred or contracted rheumatism caused by exposure and hardships incident to the service....⁵⁴

...[About July, 1865, at Stephenson's Station, Virginia, William] contracted chronic diarrhea. He became so much worse and weaker that about the first of September 1865, that he was compelled [sic] to go to the hospittal [sic] at Washington City. While in hospittal [sic] he became afflicted with jaundice and vertigo. He was very dizzie [sic] [, and he] would some times stagger and fall down....⁵⁵

...[William] has been disabled about 3/4 of his time for the performance of manual labor on an average from the time he came home from said [army] service up to the present time.⁵⁶

As time passed and as William's age increased, his physical condition continued to deteriorate. In 1890, a physician stated in an affidavit:

...[William] becomes less able to perform manual labor from year to year.... I do not consider him capacitated for the performance of manual labor at least not more than one fourth of his time.⁵⁷

In 1896, a former comrade and long-time neighbor stated in an affidavit:

...[William has been ill since he returned from the army] but of later years more constant and severely - being at times entirely disabled to perform any manual labor whatsoever on account of said disabilities [from his army service]....⁵⁸

By the spring of 1898, William's physical condition had worsened considerably. On April 28, 1898, a physician listed many of William's medical problems and concluded in an affidavit:

...[William] is aged beyond his years.... [He] is totally incapacitated for the performance of manual labor.... 59

On the same date, April 28, 1898, a second physician listed many of William's medical problems and concluded in an affidavit:

...[William] is practically and totally incapacitated for the performance of manual labor. He is about sixty years old - but looks fully seventy or seventy-five. 60

About a week later, on May 3, 1898, another physician stated in an affidavit:

...His [William's] form bent, and shoulders depressed. The body emaciated, muscles flabby, skin sallow and dry, arteries hardened.... [I]rritable condition of digestive tract.... [Also symptoms] of rheumatism.... [W]eak heart and easy of excitement with a murmur.... [Vertigo] attacks are frequent.... Said soldier's disability is total.⁶¹

On that same May 3, 1898, still another physician listed many of William's medical problems and concluded in an affidavit:

...[William's] skin is clammy and cold this warm day indicating a very feeble circulation of the capilary [sic] circulation. In my opinion his incapacity to perform manual labor is totally.⁶²

On December 17, 1898, William died.⁶³ The death records stated, rather simply and vaguely, that the cause of death was "heart trouble."⁶⁴

The physician who had been treating William later stated in effect as follows: that he had been treating William since June 24, 1898; that his initial diagnosis was that William showed "...light symptoms of angina pectoris..."; that he then "...treated...[William] on that diagnosis until his death...[and] the immediate cause of death was paralysis of the heart, following an attack of angina pectoris...."

At the time of William's death, he was only a little more than 61 years of age. 66 He was buried at the Bethel Cemetery. His gravestone uses the name of Johns, with the "s." (His will dated January 24, 1893, uses the name of John, with no "s." Some of the official records relating to his death also use the name of John, with no "s." (When the scribe recently visited the Bethel Cemetery, a small American flag and a small G.A.R. decorative piece were on a small rod at William's grave.)

When William died, Sarah Elizabeth owned 20 acres of the then 120-acre farm in her own name, and she had a "life interest" in the remaining 100 acres. (The 120-acre farm, including the buildings, was estimated to have a total value of about $3,360.00.) Much of the land was wooded and was "...rough and hilly and... [could] be only used at considerable disadvantage for agricultural purposes...." There were only about 39 acres under cultivation: corn, ten acres; wheat, twelve acres; oats, six acres; hay, ten acres; potatoes, one acre. There was also a more-or-less typical farm garden for some of the family's food. Some of the land was also used for grazing by the farm's animals. There were seven head of cattle, nineteen sheep, a couple of hogs, two horses, and some chickens. "...Just a week before my husband died he bought ten head of sheep on time and they were brought home the Monday before he died...," and Sarah Elizabeth had to pay for them at $3.00 per sheep for a total of $30.00.72 She had debts of $735.00, including $550.00 to her son Leander for his share on the crops. The same strain of the crops.

After William's death, several long-time neighbors gave affidavits and depositions in support of Sarah Elizabeth's claim for a Civil War widow's pension. The statements made by one long-time neighbor in an affidavit dated May 15, 1899, are fairly typical of other statements made in those documents:

...[T]hat all the [real] property owned by claimant [Sarah Elizabeth] or in which she has any interest is about 120 acres of land...; that her [Sarah Elizabeth's] income from all sources is considerable [sic] less than eight dollars per month since January 1899; that her means of support since that date is derived from the proceeds of said farm aided by her own labor, and the contributions of others not legally bound for her support; that said farm is worked on the shares and after paying taxes, insurance[,] and other expenses from her share she has very little left[,] and it is by her own labor that she is able to make a living at all; Soldier [William] also left a small amount of personal property[,] chiefly agricultural implements and farm stock of the probable value of two hundred and seventy five dollars and also household goods[,] just sufficient for housekeeping. [William's personal property was later appraised at a value of $343.50.]...

With the continuing help of many members of her family, Sarah Elizabeth would continue to work and to live on the farm. Her Civil War widow's pension would help in providing the bare essentials, but there would continue to be few frills.

By about 1900, the name of Johns, with the "s," was being used more frequently, but not consistently, than the name of John, with no "s," in this line of ancestry. In some instances, too, the name of John, with no "s," continued to be used in this line of ancestry simply because it had initially been so entered in governmental records.

For about 17 years after William's death, Sarah Elizabeth continued to work and to live on the farm. On November 13, 1915, she died.⁷⁴ Her death occurred "...on the old home place near Wolf, Tuscarawas County...." (Obituary, The Newcomerstown News (November 15, 1915).) In an unidentified obituary, the circumstances of her death were noted in some detail.

... Although she [Sarah Elizabeth] had been in failing health for more than a year past, her death came with startling suddenness. During the day her daughters, Mrs. Ola Leech and Mrs. Lillie Millburn from Newcomerstown had been at their mother's side, and they found her cheerful and happy, better physically, apparently, than she had seemed in many a day.

After a happy evening together all retired, serenely unconscious of an impending crisis. At 11:30 the mother stirred uneasily, and the daughter at her side asked if she were ailing. The mother replied quietly that she felt some pain in the region of her heart, and that she feared that her malady might be returning. In a half hour she was dead. Her hour had come, and the loving ministrations of friends at her side were unavailing.

The same unidentified obituary also referred in some detail to her birth, marriage, descendants, and other aspects of her life.

... [After Sarah Elizabeth's marriage to William,] her home was thenceforth to be either on the farm on which she died, or on an adjoining farm. Both farms had been purchased by the Johns [sic] ancestors many years before.

... [Sarah Elizabeth's many descendants were] left to mourn a pious, loving ancestor.

Mother Johns was converted early in life at the old Union Church, and for forty years past has been a devoted member of the M.E. Society at Wolf. Like nearly all the descendants of the pioneers, her life had been of rugged service. Like these people she early learned the lessons of helpfulness, and no tasks were too hard or too long if they gave promise of bringing comfort to others. Best of all, she early found the Christian life to be the only safe anchor of hope. As she lived, so she passed beyond trusting in this hope.

Of the seven children of William and Sarah Elizabeth (Norris) Johns, attention now turns to Ola B. (In some materials, Ola B. is given the first name of Olivia, Ollie, or Oleva. For several reasons, Ola will be used here: first, most of the references are to Ola; second, the scribe never heard her called anything but Ola; third, Ola is used on her gravestone. The "B." stands for Belle; some references have an "e," and some other references do not have an "e." As far as the scribe can recall, she also always stated that her maiden name was Johns, with the "s.")

On December 11, 1876, Ola B. Johns was born on the family farm near Wolf, Tuscarawas County. (Most references simply state that she was born in Tuscarawas County; a few references state that she was born in Buckhorn.) She grew up on the family farm. She was a farm girl.

On December 25, 1896, Ola B. Johns married Samuel Ferguson Leech, a farm boy from the nearby Bakersville area. Of Ola B. (Johns) Leech and of her married life with Samuel Ferguson Leech, more will be stated in Chapter Five.
